For those with special needs in Hawaii, organizations, families, and medical providers support rehabilitation and1 rehabilitation efforts. Individuals can participate in Speech and Language Pathologists, Physical Therapies, and Occupational Therapists to help them regain their independence. Rehabilitation services are available for individuals of all ages and can be provided in a variety of settings, including hospitals, clinics, and home care. These services are designed to help individuals achieve their maximum potential and return to an active and fulfilling life. If you or someone you know is in need of rehabilitation services, contact local organizations or medical providers for more information.
